AS TO THE SITUATION.

MORE ABOUT THE WILLIS COM-MUNICATION

Daniel Webster versus Grover Clevetand-A Willis Interview-Note

since last night it has been learned that Minister Willis offered amnesty to all the "rebels" on behalf of the ex-Queen. This communication took the general ground that the Provisional Government, having submitted its case to the arbitration of the President of the United States, it was in duty bound, now that he had decided against it, to the United States, it was in duty bound, now that he had decided against it, to step down and out.

The news of the event was received with the usual gin-bedewed exultation by the Royalists, but it only served to nerve up the patriotic party and raise the war spirit higher. Where there was any need of further preparation for resistance, such preparation was made. Rumors, of course, were on the wing. Among them was one that Mrs. Irwin, the wife of the Admiral, was packing up to leave the country, possibly on the Corwin. Various incendiary remarks were also attributed to British naval

DANIEL WEBSTER IN POINT. An eminent lawyer, to show how much variance there is between Mr. Cleveland and the great Webster on the matter of Presidental coercion calls our attention to the following:

On July 14th 1851, Daniel Webster, Secretary of State, wrote as follows to power in this Government rests entirely with Congress, and that the President can authorize belligerent operations only in the cases capressly provided for by the constitution and laws. By those in power is given to the executive to oppose an attack by one independent nation on the possessions of another. We are bound to regard both France and Hawaii as independent States; and though the general policy of the Government might lead it to take part with either in a controversy with the other, still, if this interference be an act of hostile force, it is not within the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitutional power of the Postsill less is it with the constitution and the warment makes ancient good ancounts.
